Festival of Science Film
2012 Venue Partner Form

Free to your school, library, town hall, gallery or museum, SCINEMA is a film festival staged nationally to celebrate National Science Week (August 11 to 19). With thanks to National Science Week, we offer your venue at no cost a package containing our 2012 film program on DVD, printed posters and programs, study guides, t-shirts and publicity materials. CSIRO, Cosmos Magazine and the RiAus will provide national publicity. What we require from you in return is that you stage your screenings during National Science Week, that admission is free, and that you take care of local publicity. School sessions don't have to be open to the public, but we ask all other venues to provide our website (www.scinema.com.au) with session times for the general public.

Our final program won't be decided on until late early June 2012, but in recognition of The International Year of Sustainable Energy for All in 2012, our program is sure to contain a few films with a strong energy and environment theme. We are holding a national student short film competition with an 'energy' theme, and the finalist films will be included in our program.

If you would like your venue to be part of our exciting 2012 festival, fill in your venue details and email to scinema@csiro.au or fax to 02 6246 4600.
