Greater Western Sydney

Australia's National Science Agency

Third biggest economy in the nation with an economic output of $114 billion annually, which is expected to rise to $165 billion in 2031.

Population growth

Currently home to 2+ million people and projected to grow to 3+ million by 2031 and to 4+ million by 2050.

40% of all new jobs in Sydney over the next 20 years will be in Greater Western Sydney.

Greater Western Sydney has more than 240,000 local businesses, with manufacturing and construction being the biggest industries.

The Western Sydney Aerotropolis will create 200,000 jobs with 10 agreements signed, including with Northrop Grumman, Mitsubishi Heavy Industries and the Sumitomo Mitsui Financial Group, Hitachi, Vitex Pharmaceuticals and Japan's Urban Renaissance Agency.

The most ethnically diverse region in Australia with nearly 1 in 3 residents from a non-English speaking background.

The Westmead Health and Medical Research Precinct is the largest collection of hospital and health services nationally. By 2036 numbers will increase to +30,000 full-time staff

and

+10,000 students

The Australian Government is investing

$2.9 billion

over 10 years in major road and motorway upgrades.

Western Sydney Airport will generate 11,346 job-years

(one full time job supported for a full year) during construction.

In 2031, it is estimated that there will be 13,169 direct jobs as a result of airport operations and Business Park activity.

Upon completion, Sydney Science Park is expected to deliver

12,000 smart jobs

10,000 STEM educated students

3,000 homes

CSIRO