

AUSTRALIAN NATIONAL INSECT COLLECTION

ARCHIVES

The Australian National Insect Collection is recognised both nationally and internationally as a major Museum. This recognition brings with it certain responsibilities. One of these is to recognise that all documentary material directly associated with the Collection and its history is as much part of the Collection as the specimens themselves.

The very long-term nature of taxonomic research requires that this material be maintained, as are the specimens, in good condition and in an accessible manner so that it is readily available to future workers.

The ANIC Archives meets these requirements in two ways:

Part 1 - Written Records: Comprising historical correspondence, reports and papers dealing with the management of the CSIR & CSIRO Collections, details of field trips (including field notes and diaries of collectors), information regarding various Collections that have been incorporated into the A.N.I.C. as well as biographies/obituaries of entomologists who have been associated with the A.N.I.C.

Part 2 - Collecting Locality Photographs: Comprising a photographic record of many collecting localities throughout Australia from which specimens have been obtained.

These archives owe their existence to Murray Upton who, when appointed as Assistant Curator in May 1967, searched for and retained all records he could locate associated with the Collection. He maintained this endeavour throughout his years with the Collection and later as an Honorary Fellow, completing the task in 2006.

INDEX

NOTE: During the 'Seismic Refit' of the ANIC Building the Archives were removed from their boxes and stored elsewhere. In 2005/6 they were re-assembled in their original order and checked. Unfortunately a number were found to be missing. The missing files included "Donation of Insect Collection by the University of New England", Box 6; "T.G. Campbells' diaries and reports", Box 15; "The Gazettal of the ANIC in 1962", Box 21 and "Development of Taxonomy in CSIRO 1971-1975", Box 24. Anyone with any knowledge of these records should advise the ANIC Manager.

Part 2 – Collecting Locality Photographs:

A photographic record, comprising 35 mm colour slides, of collecting sites visited during major field trips is maintained in two boxes within the ANIC Archives.

These are divided into some 28 ecologically cohesive areas throughout Australia and a further one for Papua New Guinea.
